

We want to explore the feasibility of a web-based psychosocial intervention for blood cancer survivors. We're hoping you can help.

Project Title: The adaptation of a web-based psychosocial intervention for cancer survivors

Researchers at the University of Auckland School of Nursing want to explore the feasibility of a web-based psychosocial intervention for blood cancer survivors. This research study is for people who have been treated for a blood cancer or health professionals or support workers who have experience working with blood cancer patients. Your participation is completely voluntary.

Would the study be a good fit for me?

This study might be a good fit for you if:

- You have been treated for a blood cancer
- You have had experience working with blood cancer patients.

What would happen if I took part in the study?

If you decide to take part in the study, you would:

- Take part in one interview, either face-to-face, Zoom or by telephone (your choice)
- The interview would take between 40-60 mins
- You would be asked to share your thoughts on a web-based psychological intervention

Participants who take part receive a $40 fuel voucher to thank them for their time.

To take part in this research or for more information, please contact Deborah Raphael:

Email: d.raaphael@auckland.ac.nz

Ph: (09) 923-6661.

The principal researcher for this study is Deborah Raphael from the University of Auckland, School of Nursing. This project has received funding from the Health Research Council.

